

ABSTRACT

A high-performance, integrated circuit interconnection laminate. Power/ground layers in laminates fabricated with open areas to permit out gassing of gases generated during high temperature lamination are located such that they do not lie under/over critical traces on signal layers. This placement of the open areas enables a reduction in cross-talk between signal layers lying on opposite sides of a power/ground layer and a reduction in signal delay.